

U. OF P. SOPHS BEAT FRESH IN CLASSIC POSTER BATTLE

Strategy Conceals Identity of Vital Placard Until Others Are Gone—Then It Is Defended Against Horde of Novices

The sophomores at the University of Pennsylvania won another class "scrap" last night, using brains as well as brawn this time to obtain their victory. The encounter, which was designated as a "poster fight," lasted from 5:15 o'clock to 6 o'clock, and during its progress medieval methods of storming castles were revived on the campus.

The rules of the engagement were: One hundred posters were to be posted throughout the stretch of campus bounded by Thirty-fourth street, Woodland avenue and Spruce street; one of these posters was the vital one, known only to the sophomores and to the senior class president, who was informed by a note just previous to the fight; the freshmen, unaware which poster was so designated, were supposed to tear it down in the allotted time; the sophomores were supposed to prevent it.

The sophomores won the fight. Not only did the freshmen fail to pull down the poster, but they even failed to get a man over the fence. Nearly 200 freshmen participated against about 125 sophomores.

HURT IN FALL FROM BED

Woman's Arm Broken When Fire Frightens Her

Mrs. Abbie Turner, forty-two years old, a lodger in a house at Eighth street and Fairmount avenue, fell out of bed during a slight fire last night and received a fracture of the arm. She was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital.

Patrolman Dickinson, of the Tenth and Buttonwood streets station, discovered the blaze, started in an awning, about 11 o'clock. Finding he could not extinguish the fire, he telephoned for chemical apparatus, which soon put it out. Later he heard moans coming from the second floor. He investigated and found the injured woman.

WOMAN IN JAIL CELL QUILTS HUNGER STRIKE

Breaks Fast of Sixteen Days When Word Picture of Helpless Children Is Painted

Mrs. Frances Mullen has abandoned her hunger strike in the Bucks county jail at Doylestown. She ate late yesterday for the first time in sixteen days.

Dr. John J. Sweeney, prison doctor, administered the nourishment to her on a teaspoon. It was milk. Later she accepted more, and today it was said at the jail her condition was good.

A word picture of her two children who would be left motherless if she continued her hunger strike finally broke down the will power that had enabled the woman to go so long without food.

It was Doctor Sweeney who painted the sad verbal picture. Mrs. Mullen began to cry, and then meekly asked for nourishment. She was so weak that great care had to be exercised to prevent the food from so shocking her system that she might die.

Mrs. Mullen was committed to jail for three months by Judge William C. Ryan, following her conviction of shooting a Sellersville farmer, for whom she kept house. She maintained she was innocent and refused to eat.

"We could not possibly have taken this action unless we felt thoroughly justified in anticipating reduced costs of materials, against which conditions our companies have made provision," said Mr. John N. Willys.

"It has been commented that the automobile business has been profiteering. The profit in proportion to the increase in prices has been much less in this industry than prior to the war.

"After two months of personal investigation on conditions abroad, I am firmly of the opinion that this country cannot hope to develop a healthy business and be able to compete with foreign markets, unless we re-establish merchandise selling prices more nearly on a par with conditions existing prior to the war.
